“ Avery posted a condolence It's hard to capture the vibrance of a life well lived in a few short sentences. There are millions of stories about my father, many of which illustrate his playful nature and his kindness. There is a definitive hole where he left this world, but we were all made better by his presence in our lives and that is something to be grateful for. For now I am letting Dad go on his journey with love, humility, and faith that he is resting well.
